

Privacy Policy for clients who are legal entities

In this privacy policy for clients who are legal entities ("Policy"), references to "Svalner Atlas", "we", "us" and "our" means Svalner Atlas Sweden KB (for contact details, see Contact us below).

Why are we informing you?

This Policy describes how we collect, process, use and transfer (collectively "process") your personal data.

Personal data is any information that can be linked to an individual. Common examples of personal data processed by us in our day-to-day activities are name, address and data used in the processing of your employer's case.

If you have any questions about our personal data processing, please feel free to contact us using the details provided under Contact us below.

Who is the data controller?

Svalner Atlas is the data controller, which means that we determine the purposes and means of how personal data is processed by us. This also means that we are obliged to ensure that your personal data is processed in accordance with this Policy and that we are obliged to provide you with the information contained in this Policy. If you have any questions, you can contact us via the contact details provided under Contact us below.

Processing of your personal data

What personal data do we process?

The personal data we collect can be divided into five categories (i) Contact details, (ii) Regulatory information, (iii) Information about the matter, (iv) Information for meetings, seminars or similar, and (v) Marketing preferences. We primarily collect personal data directly from you, but in some cases we may receive the data from, for example, your employer, companies you own, public registers or authorities. The data is collected in order to perform the work we have undertaken in the agreement with you or your employer and to fulfill our legal obligations.

The data we process and where we obtain it from is shown in the table below. Sometimes the processing is also carried out by others than us and then on our behalf (see Does Svalner Atlas share your personal data with others? below).

Does Svalner Atlas share your personal data with others?

Data may be shared when handling your case

We may sometimes share your personal data with external third parties, in which case the following categories of third parties are involved

- (a) other companies or offices within the network of advisers acting under the Svalner Atlas name to the extent necessary for handling your case;
- (b) other advisers, courts or authorities as part of handling your case;
- (c) courts and authorities; if we are asked to represent and answer questions or requests for opinion;

- (d) supervisory authorities and other competent authorities, if it is necessary for an investigation or to respond to inquiries regarding our compliance with the requirements of applicable law;
- (e) authorities;
- (f) financial institutions;
- (g) insurers; and
- (h) advisors, such as lawyers and accountants.

These organizations will process your personal data as data controllers, which means that they are responsible for their own processing of personal data.

We also engage third parties who provide us with certain services and who process personal data on our behalf. These third parties are data processors in relation to Svalner Atlas and we have therefore entered into data processing agreements with them. These services are:

- (a) IT support, cloud services and other IT-related services where the provider helps us manage, for example, our website, newsletters and invitations, document management systems, time tracking systems, financial and other systems; and
- (b) Debt collection agencies.

Does Svalner Atlas transfer personal data to countries outside the EU/EEA?

We generally do not transfer your personal data to a country outside the EU/EEA. Where your personal data is processed outside the EU/EEA, there is either a decision by the European Commission that the country in question ensures an adequate level of protection or appropriate safeguards in the form of standard contractual clauses.

If you have any questions about the transfer of data to other countries, please contact us, see contact details under Contact us below.

How is your personal data protected?

Svalner Atlas uses adequate IT security systems to protect the confidentiality, integrity and availability of your personal data. In particular, we have taken appropriate security measures against unlawful or unauthorized processing of personal data and against accidental loss of or damage to personal data. Access to your personal data is only granted to persons for whom it is necessary for the performance of their duties.

How long does Svalner Atlas store your personal data?

We will keep your personal data for as long as we need it to fulfil the purposes for which it was collected (see above) and to comply with laws and legal obligations. This may mean keeping some data for longer than others. For example, the length of time we keep your personal data is affected by the following (i) laws we are obliged to comply with,

(ii) whether we have any legal proceedings between each other or any third party, (iii) the type of personal data we hold about you, and (iv) whether you or any competent authority asks us to retain the data.

For detailed information on how long Svalner Atlas stores your personal data, please refer to the above description of each processing activity.

Your rights and how to use them

You have various rights under the GDPR. If you have any questions about how to exercise your rights, please contact us, see Contact us below.

Below is a summary of the rights you have under the GDPR. The table below also contains information on any conditions and limitations on how the right can be exercised and how to exercise your right in practice.

Your rights	Explanation
Right of access (Article 15 GDPR)	You have the right to access the personal data we have about you and how it is processed (known as a 'register extract'). You also have the right to request a copy of the personal data processed by us.
Right to data portability (Article 20 GDPR)	You may have the right to receive the data you have provided to us, in a commonly used machine-readable format if the processing is based on your consent or on our agreement with you. You also have the right to transfer the data to another controller or to have our assistance in transferring the data to another controller where this is technically feasible.
Right to rectification (Article 16 GDPR)	You have the right to have inaccurate data corrected without undue delay and to ask us to complete incomplete data by providing us with correct data.
Right to object (Article 21 GDPR)	You have the right to object to the processing of your data based on a balance of interests. If we cannot demonstrate compelling legitimate grounds to continue processing the data, we must cease the processing.
Right to deletion and restriction (Article 17 and 18 GDPR)	You may have the right to have your personal data erased (also known as the 'right to be forgotten') if, for example, you believe that the data we are processing is inaccurate, or that the processing itself is unlawful. There are various situations where we have the right to refuse your request for erasure. Such situations may be (i) that we need the data to fulfil a legal obligation, (ii) that we need the data to exercise or respond to legal claims, (iii) that we need the data because certain archiving obligations apply by law, or (iv) that the data is necessary to fulfil contractual obligations we have towards you. You may also request that certain processing of your data be restricted, for example if you object to the accuracy of the data.
Right to withdraw your consent (Article 7.3 GDPR)	You have the right to withdraw your consent to all or part of the processing to which you have previously consented, with effect from the moment of withdrawal.
Right to lodge a complaint (Article 77 GDPR)	You have the right to lodge a complaint with the Swedish Authority for Privacy Protection (www.imy.se).
